

HEALING JOURNEY

In the fall of 2022, Yasmeen was diagnosed with cancer and so set out on a healing journey that would take her across the world.

Diagnosed in Canada, Yasmeen was scheduled for intensive chemotherapy. The risk of that treatment was damage to her nervous system which might result in the loss of the use of her hands, something inconceivable for an artist such as Yasmeen.

Seeking alternative cures Yasmeen travelled to Germany and then on to Italy. During her voyage she has undergone alternative and progressive, private, standard and alternative medical treatments. She is currently undergoing cell reversal therapies in Italy and striving to raise funds for her treatments and life cost. All support for this gifted artist's healing is welcome at this time. You can help by sending your prayers, by donating or purchasing her artwork and by lovingly sharing her story.

“It isn’t yesterday that made me, it is the sound of the bell’s, the wind, the rain. My heart beating through it all, reverently dancing to life’s blessing, beyond time, in this moment and always.”

Tell it to me like a Story

Tell it to me like a story, tell it to me like the wind, rushing through the trees at night, under a star filled sky. Tell it to me like the soft cooing of my babies nestling against me for milk. Tell it to me like a sunrise, cresting the highest peak, tell it to me with reverence for what I might become, when you say it, what I will hope for, what I will realize.

The fire has danced a long time inside my heart, burning embers. Lighting my music, setting fire to my art. Driving me to paint through storms. I have known this fire filling me with light since I was a child, fogging up the window with my breath as I drew pictures with a chubby hand between me, the inner world, and the outer one. Making sense of these feelings, this life, this searching to understand.
